Public Holiday

Overview

As a company that prides itself on a family & friends first approach no one is expected to attend calls on days they are not working or out of the office for an official public holiday. We encourage all team members to take time off for public holidays. As a company that values Diversity, Inclusion & Belonging, public holidays will not be pre-loaded to Workday, instead team members have the flexibility to elect different dates and celebrate what's important to them, as long as they do not exceed the balance in Workday. This means YOU CAN CHOOSE the public holidays you want to take.

All team members will see a public holiday accrual balance in Workday.
The balance is country specific and was determined based on the local and/or contractual requirements.
Balances are reviewed and updated if appropriate annually, based on benchmarked data for "National Holidays".*
The balance must be used within the calendar year, unused public holiday balances will not rollover to the following calendar year.
Note *: Contractors of GitLab GSI (previously IT BV) are eligible for general benefits but not entity-specific benefits (including public holidays). However, GitLab has chosen to provide a standardized allocation of 12 public holidays as part of our commitment to supporting all team members. The 12-day allocation matches the weighted average of public holidays globally across countries where team members are employed by GitLab.

General List of Public Holidays

For a general list of public holidays by country, follow these steps:

Go to the timeanddate.com
Select 'Holidays Worldwide' from the Calendar dropdown menu.
Select your country of residence
Change the dropdown from 'All holidays and national observances' to 'Public Holidays'

How to Enter Public Holidays in Workday

You can enter Public Holidays directly into the Workday app, or through the Workday Slack integration.
Select the day(s) you wish to observe as a public holiday > Click "Time-Off" > Click "Public Holiday" > Optional: add a comment > Click "Submit"
Important: All team members must log their time away in Workday. To read more about Workday, please refer to: Workday: Single Source of Truth for Absence.

Frequently Asked Public Holiday Questions

Help! I'm receiving an error message, what does this mean?

All team members will see public holiday balance accrual in Workday. If you encounter an error when trying to submit a Public Holiday it is likely because you have met that limit. If you'd still like to have that day off, please utilize GitLab's Flexible PTO policy.
Public Holidays will be listed in Workday with a length of 1 day. You cannot take partial public holidays.
I am a new hire. How has my public holiday balance been determined?

When team members join mid-year, their public holiday balance is pro-rated based on their hire date using the following formula, where permitted by local law:

(Days remaining in the calendar year ÷ 365) × Full-year public holiday entitlement The result is rounded to the nearest whole day — up if the decimal is .5 or above, down if below .5. For example, if your country's full-year entitlement is 10 days and you joined with 92 days remaining in the year, your balance would be 10 × (92 ÷ 365) = 2.52, rounded up to 3 days.

I still have questions related to public holidays and/or how to categorize my time off, who can I ask? Please submit your question to the People Operations team via Compass.
